INTRODUCTION

DATA COLLECTION DESCRIPTION

Originally known as the National Pretrial Reporting Program, the State Court Processing Statistics (SCPS) program tracks felony cases filed in May until their final disposition or until 1 year has elapsed from the date of filing. This collection presents data on felony cases filed in approximately 40 of the Nation's 75 most populous counties. These 75 counties account for more than a third of the U.S. population and approximately half of all reported crimes.

The cases from these 40 jurisdictions are weighted to represent all felony filings during the month of May in the 75 most populous counties. Data are collected on arrest charges, demographic characteristics, criminal history, pretrial release and detention, adjudication, and sentencing.

SAMPLING AND WEIGHTING INFORMATION

The sampling procedures used are designed to represent felony court filings during the month of May in the 75 most populous counties in the United States. The sampling procedures are designed and implemented by the U.S. Bureau of the Census. The predetermined limit of 40 sites was set by BJS in accordance with budget requirements. The data collection agent is the Pretrial Services Resource Center (PSRC) of Washington, D.C.

The sample is a two-stage stratified sample:

- *the first stage is a stratified sample to select 40 of the 75 most populous counties to be included in the study;

- *the second stage is a systematic sample of felony filings (defendants) within each selected county.

Stage 1: Site selection

Sites were divided into four strata, based on initial court filing information. This information was obtained from a telephone survey conducted by the PSRC to determine the number of initial felony filings in each of the 75 largest counties. Stratum 1 included counties which were to be included "with certainty". All of these counties are included because of their large number of lower court filings.

The following formula was applied to determine the number of sites which should be included with certainty (stratum 1):

$$\frac{\text{total \# of lower court filings in all 75 counties}}{\text{the desired sample size}} * 80\%$$

The remaining counties are allocated to the three non-certainty strata based on the variance of felony court dispositions. This was achieved by applying the following formula:

$$40-N1 * \frac{NhSh}{\text{Summ}(NhSh)} = \text{the number of sites to select}$$ where,

Nh = the number of jurisdictions in stratum h

Sh = standard error for the estimate of dispositions for stratum h

As a result, Stratum 2 consisted of counties with fewer filings than stratum 1 counties, but more filings than stratum 3 counties. Stratum 4 counties were those with the lowest number of filings. Before the sites were selected within the strata, counties were ordered within the strata by regions as defined by the Census Bureau and within region by decreasing lower court filings.

To estimate the standard error, variances needed to be calculated on a variable other than the one being stratified on. Thus, they were calculated on the number of upper court felony dispositions in each county. (This information was made available by the Bureau of Justice Statistics, based on information obtained from a mail survey. The relative standard error achieved on upper court dispositions was .03.

Stage 2: Defendant sampling procedures

The procedure for selecting defendants was designed to reflect all defendants who had felony cases filed with the court during the month of May. To accomplish this, participating jurisdictions selected every defendant who had a felony charge filed on pre-selected days during that month.

The days on which defendants entered the sample varied by site depending on the stratum. This variation was to ensure a minimum number of cases in each site, but also without overburdening the larger sites.

For Stratum 1 sites, defendants representing one week's worth of filings were selected. This was achieved by randomly selecting a starting date between the 1st and the 5th, and then selecting every 4th day. This procedure produced a sample that represented felony filings on each day of the week, distributed throughout the month. For sites in Strata 2 and 3, two weeks of defendants representing filings were selected. For this group, a random start date between the 1st and 3rd was selected and then every other business day was selected. For sites in Stratum 4, all felony filings during the month of May were included.

Weighting Procedures

Weighting of the data, where the weight equals the inverse of the probability of selection in the sample, was done in two stages. The first stage addressed the probability of a site being selected in the sample. All cases from counties in Stratum 1 had a first-stage weight of 1.000 (since all counties in the stratum were selected for the sample). The counties in the other three strata had a first-stage weight of N_h/n_h . Where N is the number of counties in stratum h , and n the number of counties selected in stratum h .

Note: The number of selected counties and the corresponding first-stage weight may vary from the original design if a county fails to provide the required data, and is subsequently dropped from the project at a date too late to allow for a substitution. The next stage of weighting addresses the probability of a defendant being selected from each site during May. For counties in Stratum 1, defendants with felony filings on every 4th working day in May 1992 are included in the sample, resulting in a second-stage weight of 4.0. For Stratum 2 and Stratum 3 counties, defendants are included for every other day, thus the second-stage weight is 2.0. For the Stratum 4 counties, where every case filed during May was selected, the second stage weight is 1.0.

The final weight used in the analyses is the first-stage county weight multiplied by the second-stage case weight. See Appendix A for unweighted and weighted sample sizes for each county in the sample.

LIMITATIONS

Two types of information are provided in this section: (1) potential problems which limit the reliability and validity of the data; and (2) caveats which may affect the interpretation of the findings.

Differences in the way in which defendants are processed through the criminal justice system in the sample sites are reflected in the data. For example, sites vary in their: (a) ratio of judges, prosecutors, defenders, etc. to defendants; (b) filing and review procedures; (c) court structure; and/or (d) extent of pretrial release options available.

Case selection

Participating jurisdictions were provided with specified days in May on which to sample all defendants who had felony. In Strata 1,2, and 3 these cases are weighted to represent the entire month. As such, any unusual event, such as a massive drug sweep, that coincided with one of the sampling days would tend to distort the overall monthly filings accordingly.

Case Information

If jurisdictions were unable to determine an arrest date, the date the case was filed in the lower court was substituted. In jurisdictions where the offense date was unknown, the arrest date was substituted. In addition, where an offense occurred over time, the earliest offense date was recorded.

Prior Record Information

The availability of prior record information varied by jurisdiction. Some jurisdictions had access to FBI rap sheets, state criminal histories, and local record checks, while others were limited to local and/or state records. The best available source or combination of sources was used for the SCPS project.

Pretrial Release Information

Defendants whose cases were disposed, dismissed, declined, etc., in such a short time as to have no opportunity for pretrial release were not coded as detained or released pretrial. Instead, they are identified by a separate code labeled "Case Closed".

Court Appearance Information

Data on whether the defendant remained a fugitive are complete, although the date when the defendant returned to court is not exact in some jurisdictions. For example, where a defendant returned voluntarily and the bench warrant was either withdrawn or executed, the return date may be recorded as the next appearance date rather than the date of execution or withdrawal.

Pretrial Rearrest Information

Although every effort was made to obtain pretrial rearrest information, it remains the most problematic of all the categories covered in this project. In many sites, rearrest data (like prior record data) was limited to the county. If the sites knew of a rearrest, the data on rearrest charge, re-release, etc. was complete. A presumption was made that if a site did not know whether or not a defendant was rearrested, the defendant was not rearrested, since they had no way to code "not known."

Adjudication information

The variable "custody at adjudication" refers to the defendant's being in custody at the time he was adjudicated, not whether he received a custodial sentence at adjudication. This included all defendants not released pretrial as well as defendants whose release was revoked while the case was pending. Pleas of "no contest" or "nolo contendere" were coded as guilty pleas and "nolle prosequi" was coded as a dismissal.

Charge level at adjudication (felony or misdemeanor) included violations as misdemeanors where the most serious charge at adjudication was a violation.
