COMMUNITY POLICING IN MADISON, WISCONSIN: EVALUATION OF IMPLEMENTATION AND IMPACT, 1987-1990 (ICPSR 6480)

SUMMARY: This study sought to evaluate the Madison, Wisconsin, Police Department's creation of a new organizational design (both structural and managerial) that was intended to support communityoriented and problem-oriented policing. One-sixth of the organization serving approximately one-sixth of the community was used as a test site for the new community policing approach. This Experimental Police District (EPD) was charged with implementing "quality policing," which emphasized quality of service delivery, quality of life in the community, and quality of life in the workplace. For the first part of the program evaluation, attitude changes among officers working in the EPD were compared with those of officers working in the rest of the police department. Part 1, Commissioned Personnel Data, Wave 1, contains responses from 269 commissioned personnel surveyed in December 1987, before the creation of the EPD. Part 2, Commissioned Personnel Data, Wave 2, consists of responses from 264 police officers who completed a Wave 2 survey in December 1988, and Part 3, Commissioned Personnel Data, Wave 3, supplies responses from 230 police officers who completed a Wave 3 survey in December 1989. Although the analysis was to be on a panel design, efforts were made to survey all commissioned personnel during each survey administration period. Police personnel provided their assessments on how successfully quality leadership had been implemented, the extent to which the officers felt they worked closely with and received feedback from other officers, the amount of their interaction with detectives, the amount of time available for problem-solving, ease of arranging schedules, safety of working conditions, satisfaction with working conditions, type of work they performed, their supervisor, commitment to the department, attitudes related to community policing and problem-solving, perception of their relationship with the community, police views of human nature, attitudes toward change, attitudes toward decentralization, and demographic information. As the second part of the program evaluation, attitude changes among residents served by the EPD were compared with those of residents in the rest of the city. These data are presented in Part 4, Residents Data, Waves 1 and 2. Data for Wave 1 consist of personal interviews with a random sample of 1,166 Madison residents in February and March 1988, prior to the opening of the EPD station. During the second wave, Wave 1 respondents interviewed by telephone in February and March 1990. Residents provided their perceptions of police presence, frequency of police-citizen contacts, quality of police-citizen contacts, estimates of the magnitude of various problems in their neighborhoods, evaluation of the problem-solving efforts of the police, perception of neighborhood conditions, levels of fear of personal experience of victimization, knowledge of victimization of other residents, and demographic information.

UNIVERSE: Police officers in the Madison Police Department and residents of the city of Madison, Wisconsin.

SAMPLING: The EPD program site was not randomly selected, but was selected by the department, based on several indicators of need. Police officers were also not randomly assigned to work in the EPD, but were allowed to bid for assignments in the EPD. Households for the resident survey were randomly selected from the 1980 Census block statistics, excluding city blocks that consisted primarily of business areas or student housing.

Data File Documentation Madison Resident Panel Survey

The first wave of the survey was conducted via personal interviews, while the second wave was conducted by telephone using a reformatted version of the questionnaire. The second wave of data has been reformated to match the first wave, and the Wave 1 questionnaire should be used as a general guide to variables in both waves. The data contains one record per respondent. First-wave respondents who were not reinterviewed are indicated by the -1 code for the second-wave variables. The file includes 364 variables and 1166 cases.

I. Variables in the Data File But Not on the Questionnaire

HHNUMBER a unique household identification number

STATUS panel survey status

0 wave 1 interview only (N=439) 1 panel reinterview (N=727)

Hello, my name is _____ and I work for a national research organization in Washington, D.C. [SHOW I.D. CARD]

We recently mailed a letter to this household about a survey we are doing to find out the problems people are having in this neighborhood and what they think can be done to improve the quality of life around here. The information you give us will help develop programs to address these problems. Everything you tell us will be kept strictly confidential and it will be used only to prepare a report in which no one's answers will ever be identified. Your participation is voluntary but your cooperation will be very helpful.

To be sure that we have a good idea of the opinions of everyone in this neighborhood, I have been given a very strict method of selecting the person I talk with in any household. First, how many people 18 years or older live in this household?

	ц о	F ADULTS	10	77 E 7 D C	$\circ$	OT DED	11 -	١
-	H U.	E ADOPIS	Τ0	ILAKS	UR	OLDEK	(T)	)

Okay, starting with the oldest male, please tell me the first name and age of all the males who are 18 years or older. [NOW LIST ALL MALES] Then, please do the same for females, starting with the oldest one.

[LIST THE FIRST NAME, SEX AND AGE OF ALL PERSONS 18 YEARS OLD AND OLDER WHO LIVE IN THIS HOUSEHOLD IN THE TABLE BELOW. ASK THE RESPONDENT IF ANY OF THE PERSONS LISTED IN THE TABLE IS LIKELY TO MOVE OUT DURING THE NEXT 12 MONTHS. IF YES, DRAW A LINE THROUGH THAT NAME. THEN FOR THE REST, ASSIGN THE NUMBER "1" TO THE OLDEST MALE, "2" TO THE SECOND OLDEST MALE, ETC. THEN ASSIGN CONTINUOUS NUMBERS TO THE FEMALES. LOOK AT THE SELECTION TABLE TO FIND OUT WHO IS TO BE INTERVIEWED. IF THE RESPONDENT SAYS THE ENTIRE HOUSEHOLD WOULD MOVE DURING THE NEXT 12 MONTHS, DROP THAT HOUSEHOLD.

LINE #	NAMES OF PERSONS 18 YEARS OR OLDER	SEX	AGE	NUMBER	CHECK RESPONDE
1						(16)(17-18)(19)
2						(20)(21-22)(23)

5						(32)(33-34)(35)
6						(36)(37-38)(39)
7						(40)(41-42)(43)

Okay, according to my instructions, I am supposed to talk with ____(READ R NAME).___ Is he/she here now?

   income of all of the people living here for 1987. Here is a card (GIVE INCOME CARD TO RESPONDENT) with some general categories on it. Please tell me which category includes your total household income--what everyone here made together last year? You don't have to give me the actual total--just tell me the correct letter.
